History of Hymns reprinted from umcdiscipleship.org (excerpt from February 2021)

Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult by Cecil Frances Alexander

Jesus calls us o'er the tumult/ Of our life's wild restless sea; Day by day his sweet voice soundeth/
Saying, "Christian, follow me!"

How does a hymn written for a minor saint's day by a Victorian hymn writer known for her pedagogical hymns for children become one of the most often sung hymns on Christian discipleship? Mrs. Cecil Frances Alexander (1818–1895) was one of the most beloved hymn writers of the nineteenth century. Born Cecil Frances Humphreys in Redcross, County Wicklow, Ireland, she married Irishman William Alexander at age 32. Alexander was an Anglican rector who became Bishop of Derry and Raphoe in 1867 and, following her death, archbishop and primate of all Ireland.....

Like many Christian women of this era, Mrs. Alexander was devoted to children's religious education, using hymns as a tool in their education. She included instructions on the seasons and feasts of the Christian year. Inspired by the influential and brilliant Anglican clergyman John Keble (1792–1866) and his collection The Christian Year (1827), Alexander prepared Verses for Holy Seasons (1846), a book for Sunday-school teachers. The purpose of this collection was to use hymns as "a Christian Year for Children, in which the attempt is made, by simple hymns, to express the feelings, and enforce the instructions, which, in her distribution of the year, the Church of England suggests" (Humphreys, 1846, p. vii).....

"Jesus Calls Us o'er the Tumult" is the exception in that it was not written as a children's hymn and was composed after her marriage. The hymn first appeared in a collection called Hymns for Public Worship (1852), published by the Society for the Propagation of Christian Knowledge (SPCK), Tract No. 15, as a hymn for St. Andrew's Day, November 30, displaying her priority for the Christian year.

Interestingly, Alexander's children's hymn for St. Andrew's Day in Verses for Holy Seasons, "O'er all the earth, with even course, / the seasons come and go," does not mention St. Andrew or his calling, but is a more general orientation to the concept of saints' days. Stanza 4 states: And thus, with feast and sacred tide/ And name of Saint and seer/ The Holy Church hath flowers to mark Her spiritual year.

The final stanza offers the children behavioral and pedagogical reason for observing saints' days:
Thus surely, with no causeless care/ The Church holds holy days,
That we may love Christ's blessed saints/ And learn to tread their ways.....

The Matthean text focuses on the calling of the fishermen, Andrew and Peter. In stanza 1, the image of "life's wild, restless sea"—an allusion to Matthew 14:24—is a metaphor drawn from the apostles' experience who, as fishermen, were always subject to the peril of sudden storms. In antithesis to the cacophonous sea, the "sweet voice" of Christ invites the fishermen—indeed all people—to follow him. Some editors modify "sweet" to "clear." While both are effective, "sweet" contrasts more effectively with the "wild, restless sea." Paul Westermeyer offers a defense for changing the original "sweet" to "clear," but in doing so cites several classic hymns that effectively maintain "sweet" in current usage (Westermeyer, 2010, p. 552).

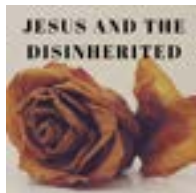

Stanza two paints a picture in our mind of calling the disciples "by the Galilean lake"—a specific place. This stanza, now omitted from or modified in many hymnals, contains the hymn's only reference to St. Andrew: As, of old, St. Andrew heard it/by the Galilean lake, turned from home and toil and kindred/leaving all for his dear sake. When included, a common modification is "As of old apostles heard it." In either case, following the call demanded severe sacrifice from the disciples, expecting that they leave all that was familiar and dear—"home . . . toil, and kindred . . . for [Jesus'] sake."

As in a classic expository sermon, the hymn writer provides the biblical context and then applies the biblical example to our lives in the remaining three stanzas. The poet calls us to turn from "the worship / of the vain world's golden store" and "any idol that would keep us" (stanza 3). Like the disciples, our lives will be full of "joys . . . and . . . sorrows, / days of toil and hours of ease." Regardless of our circumstances, be they days of "cares [or] pleasures," "still he calls us" (stanza 4).

The hymn is a straightforward, concise narrative of the account in Matthew 4. All but one of the original five stanzas conclude with Christ's imperative to his followers, past and present—"Christian, follow me" (stanza 1); "Christian, love me more" (stanza 3); "Christian, love me more than these" (stanza 4). The hymn writer encourages the hymn singer to make a commitment to Christ in the final stanza. Stanza 5 is, according to Albert Bailey, "A prayer that we may hear the call and make it our heart's desire to be loyal to the Savior" (Bailey, 1950, p. 355): Jesus calls us! By thy mercies/ Savior may we hear thy call/ give our hearts to Thine obedience/ serve and love Thee best of all.....

The tune most commonly associated with this text is GALILEE, written for the hymn by English organist William H. Jude (1851–1922). Paradoxically, this tune is more commonly sung in North America. Several other well-known tunes support this 8.7.8.7 meter, and these may be worth exploring to more fully express both the solemn nature of the call and the imperative—Follow me. For example, RESTORATION from William Walker's Southern Harmony (1835) or PLEADING SAVIOR found in Joshua Leavitt's Christian Lyre (1830) capture a solemn folk-like sensibility by employing a minor mode. David Hurd has composed ST. ANDREW (1980) used in H82 that, though composed in the later twentieth century, employs "a simple folk-like tune built around the tones of a pentatonic scale on F" (Glover, 1994, p. 549).

Dr. Hawn is distinguished professor of church music at Perkins School of Theology. He is also director of the seminary's sacred music program.

Caring Well for Each Other

My dad received a thank you note recently after helping with a memorial service for someone in his church. One of the lines in the note stood out to me, "Elderly folks need so little, but they need that little so much." I was stunned at the simple truth of the statement and realized that it applies to all ages. We need each other in these hard times.

Jesus set the example by having twelve close friends. He loved a good dinner party, didn't He? So now that we are forced to spend more time apart, wearing masks, outdoors, how do we continue to nurture and tend those tender plants of friendship and relationship? COVID has made a lot of things harder and gathering with family and friends is one of those things. Let us persevere in outreach and in kind acts toward one another. As the vaccine spreads and overtakes this dreaded virus, we can expect gradual re-opening. Meanwhile, let us continue to "do all the good we can, wherever we can, in whatever ways we can, for however long we can." (John Wesley)

COVID Care

Our church has been responding to those who are ill by delivering Chicken Noodle Soup (or other food) and a pulse oximeter, if needed. Through the Casserole Ministry and the able leadership of Lisa Stroud and her responsive team of delivery folks, we were able to send out food/soup to 30 different households in one month alone.

Caring for Caregivers and for Those Who Mourn

Sadly, we mourned the passing of many church members in the beginning of 2021. We are blessed to have a support group called "Good at Grief" under the able leadership of Chris Taylor and Paula Poe. The group meets on Zoom every first Thursday of the month from noon until 1:00 p.m. In addition, we are all invited to reach out intentionally to those in our church family who are going through times of grief. The comfort that a call or a card or a text provides can be just what folks need to keep going.

For those who are involved in caregiving either locally or long-distance, we extend an open invitation to our Caregivers Connect group which meets each first Wednesday on Zoom. Please contact Joy Eastridge at jeastridge@fbsumc.org for Zoom information.

Firewood Requests Increase in Recent Weeks

The Firewood Ministry has seen an increase in new requests for wood to heat their homes in recent weeks due to the colder weather. Many of these are struggling with providing the necessities of their homes. The ability to obtain wood to heat their homes eases the burden somewhat, but it also provides a glimmer of hope that God provides warmth spiritually as well as physically. We could use more volunteers to deliver wood as the number of requests increase. If you would like to explore how you can participate in this ministry and share the love and grace of Christ in a very tangible way, please call the Mission Office at 423-224-1531.

Summer Mission Intern Applications Available

Applications for the two annual Summer Mission Intern positions are now available and will be due back in by April 1. The role of the Summer Mission Intern is to work with the mission staff and volunteer leaders in local mission ministries as well as the high school and middle school mission trips, and is an eight-week internship. We are planning to offer these positions for the summer as long as Covid numbers and consequent protocol allow for increased ministry for the summer.

Due to Covid, mission trips have been suspended until further notice. It is too early to know if we will be able to resume the summer mission trips yet, but pray that we will be able to return to them. In the event we cannot, we intend on a more intentional local mission experience for our youth and adults, as long as the status of Covid allows us to be together in larger groups and settings. The Mission Interns will be involved in these opportunities if they develop. Please pray about how God may be calling you to participate in the mission ministry of First Broad Street this summer, as we all pray for the ability to re-engage in face-to-face ministry once again.

Applications are available at the church office, the mission office, or by emailing dhowe@fbsumc.org to request an application. For more information on this position, please contact Danny Howe in the mission office at 423-224-1531.

Firewood Ministry Needs Help Getting and Splitting Wood

The Firewood Ministry is in need of assistance in retrieving donated wood and splitting the wood once at the woodlot. The crew generally works on weekday mornings, finishing by noon, and you can volunteer for whatever fits your availability and schedule. Training is provided as needed, and fellowship abounds. This is a great ministry opportunity that will enable the wood to be ready for delivery to the families that we provide it for through the winter months. The woodlot is now located at Wimberly Woods in Bloomingdale, the FBSUMC Retreat Center, and is a great location to work in the outdoors. If you would like to know more about how you can participate in this ministry, please call the Missions Office at 423-224-1531.
